Title: Cyberbullying Is a Serious Problem

Publisher: Greenhaven Press
Year: YYYY

Annotation:
"""In the following viewpoint, Susan Hayes argues that cyberbullying has become a serious problem. She explains that the impact of cyberbullying can be devastating, resulting in suicides or even school murders. The incidents result from using the Internet, or even cell phones, to post information meant to hurt a person or damage his or her reputation. Hayes points out that cyberbullies are typically former close friends of the victims and are not just "anonymous thugs in cyberspace." When the abuse gets increasingly worse, Hayes contends that one of the best solutions is having friends who speak up against the bullying."

MLA Parenthetical Reference

Example for your source
A parenthetical reference to this Anthology/Collection might look like this:

...the end of your sentence (Hayes [Page #]).

Customize the example:

Note: This is not the only way to write this parenthetical reference. For example, you might include the author or title of the work in your sentence already (see Rule 2). Please read the additional rules below to be sure you are writing your reference correctly.

What is a parenthetical reference?
A parenthetical reference is a reference within the body of your paper to one of the sources listed in your Works Cited list. It indicates to your reader exactly what you derived from the source, and specifically where it can be found. You need to write a parenthetical, or "in-text" reference, whether you quote the material directly from the source, paraphrase it in your own words, or refer to an idea derived from the material.

What typically goes in an MLA-style parenthetical reference?
The information that you need to include depends on what type of source the material comes from. For printed material, you normally only need to include the author(s) or title if there is
