Citing a Photograph from a Database in NoodleTools

If photograph is of the following:
- Architecture
- Artifacts
- Works of fine art (i.e. paintings, sculptures)

... then you must cite the architecture, artifact, or work of fine art itself -- NOT the photograph!

(If this is the case, open “Works of Fine Art” tutorial instead.)
Under Sources, Click + Create new citation
Select database.

MLA Parenthetical Reference

Example for your source

A parenthetical reference to this Photo or Illustration might look like this:

...the end of your sentence (Lange).

Note: This is not the only way to write this parenthetical reference. For example, you might include the author or title of the work in your sentence already (see Rule 2). Please read the additional rules below to be sure you are writing your reference correctly.

What is a parenthetical reference?

A parenthetical reference is a reference within the body of your paper to one of the sources listed in your Works Cited list. It indicates to your reader exactly what you derived from the source, and specifically where it can be found. You need to write a parenthetical, or "in-text" reference, whether you quote the material directly from the source, paraphrase it in your own words, or refer to an idea derived from the material.

What typically goes in an MLA-style parenthetical reference?

The information that you need to include depends on what type of source the material comes from. For printed material, you normally only need to include the author(s) or title (if there is no author) and page number(s) in your reference. For multi-volume works like encyclopedias, you may also need to include a volume number (see Rules 6 and 7 below). For Internet sources, sometimes paragraph numbers are provided.

The information described above can be either included in the sentence that you write, or added in parentheses at the end of the sentence.

What other rules do I need to know to write a parenthetical reference?
